METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE. Since the first night of his season Mr. Abbey has proceeded steadily on the path which he marked out In his prospectus. Some of the sensations which he has provided thus far have been novel to opera-goers here. Not once has an opera that has been announced been withdrawn; only once has there been a substitution of one sincer for another; each week has added two operas to the list of works performed. Last night he redeemed a promise that only a brave manager would make, and only a well-equipped one fulfil; he gave

Mozart's "Don Giovanoi," It was a performance that contained a hotch-potch of the good, the bad and the indifferent, and it closed at so late an hour that an intelligent review is impossible in a newspaper published this morning. There is time only for a few hurried notes to keep the record of performances intact.

Whatever the shortcomings of the formance, a hearty word of commendation is due for the effort to revive Mozart's masterpiece. It was a task of herculean proportions. Mr. Abbey's is the only company that we have heard for years which contains singers even measurably able to cope with the most exacting of all Italian opera scores. For a long time it has seemed as if Donna Anna, the most statuesque and impos-ing female character in the whole range of Italian opera, had died with Mme. Parepa Rosa; as if the last Zerling had skipped off the American stage with Mme. Lucca; as if for us Donna Eleira would never be aught but a barren ideality. Yet worthy representatives of these three characters appeared last night at the new opera house in Mmes. Fursch-Madi, Sembrich and Nilsson. Some comment was occasioned by the fact that Donna Anna was not impersonated by Mme. Nilsson, Anna was not impression.

this lady having a good deal of the grand style which is called for by the rôle. An answer to the wherefore of this that was all-sufficient was given by Mme. Nilsson's singing of the music of ra. It is not disparaging her other performances in performance was concerned, her singing of the great airs of the first act surrouse. the least to say that so far as the artistic nobility of the of the first act surpassed everything that she has done this season except, per haps, a portion of her work in "Lohengrin." But we cannot enter into an analysis; this must be reserved for a future occasion. Suffice it that each of the turee women-Mme. Fursch-Madi as Donna Anna, Mm three women—Mme. Fursch-Madi as Donna Anna, Mme Nilsson as Donna Elvira, and Mme. Sembrich as Donna Zerlina—did excellent work, and if the complete success of the opera had depended on their efforts it would have been won. All the trouble there was came from other elements, notably the instrumental musicians, who made a sad mess of the finale of the first act. Signor Stagno was the Don Oldavio, Signor Kaschmann the Don Glocanni, and Signor Mirabella the Leporello.

The house was crowded with a magnificent audience. Can it be possible that the lesson of this opera and "Lohengrin" will be lost on Mr. Abbey and his managers!

MADAME PATTI AS AIDA.

To those who appreciate and admire the highest type of dramatic art when it is graced with the added eartype of dramatic music a fare treat was given last night at the Academy of Music in Muse. Patti's first appearance as Aida, in Verdi's operatic masterpiec of that name. And the lovers of the wedded music and drama were quick to feel this, for they filled the Academy in every part, and gave the performance the warm approval that it merited. The other parts in the opera were taken as follows:

Amonaso Signor Galassi
Famile Signor Galassi
Famile Signor Cherubini
Fike Signor Lombardelli
Mile Gemna Tiozzo

The performance as a whole was an undoubted succes to which the orchestra, the chorus and the chief singers contributed their shares. But it was Mune. Patti's singing and above all her splendid dramatic portrayal of the ill starred Aida which gave the entertainment its greatest charm and lifted it immeasurably above the ordinary level of Italian opera. The character of the Ethlopian maid with her semi-barbarous passion in conflicting love, filial affection and patriotism was invested with a sweet tenderness and a graceful dignity that appealed most powerfully to the hearts of Mme. Patti's hearers. Added to this was the matchless sweetness and art of her singing. Those were not the familiar Egyptian columns and portals, nor were these the well-known palms in the moonlight by the Nile, which have been seen so often in representations of the opera. They seemed real temples, real palaces of the Pharaohs, and real Nile scenes, in the light of the rare art with which not only Aida, but through her presence all the other pharacters were surrounded by Mme. Patti's portrayal. It was a nobler Aida who acknowledged with pride her secret love for Rhadames under the jealous taunts of amneris. It was, indeed, a deep-natured, tenderhearted girl who was torn there before the pitying audisince with alternate love for her Egyptian warrior and affection for her captive father and her suffering It was a woman's soul fired highest devotion to her condemned lover whom the people saw resolutely go to share his whom the people saw resolutely go to share his death when all hope for father, lover and native land had gone. The tenderness and passionate rapture of the maiden, her suffering and her heroic devotion were all portrayed with a wealth of sympathetic feeling and a versatile, ideal art that made the stage portrayal more smotionally effective than any reality could have been.

Of the other actors signor Galassi, as Aidv's father, was the most powerful. Signor Nicolini as Rhadamss won well-earned applianse. Mile, Tiozzo's Ameris was hardly above mediocrity. Mone, Patti was called before the curtain again and again during the performance, with her associates, and at the end of Act II, received a most lattering ovation with numbers of handsome floral designs.

SENATOR ANTHONY PROSTRATED.

SEIZED WITH A CONVULSION IN A HOTEL AND UN CONSCIOUS FOR SEVERAL HOURS.

About 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening a stout man of medium height, with long gray hair and gray whiskers, walked slowly up to the desk in the Fifth Avenue Hotel and registered his name as Henry B. Anthony, of Rhode Island. The venerable Senato had arrived only half an hour before from Providence, R. I., and was on his way to Washington to attend the opening of Congress. After chaiting for a few moments with Mr. Carr, the well-known clerk of the hotel, he walked toward the elevator, intending to go up at once to his room and prepare for dinner. He had only got half way from the desk to the elevator when he staggered and fell heavily forward on his face. In an instant he was surrounded by an eager crowd, who endeavored to once for the hotel doctor. Dr. Goldthwaite was soon on the spot, and the Senator was lifted into the elevator and thence carried to the spot, and the second term of the spot, and the second term of the s he was unconscious, and a messenger was sent at the elevator and thence carried to room No. 81. Upon examination it was discovered that he was suffering from a uramic convalsion. He was unconscious for several hours, but revived somewhat during the night, and was said by his physician yesterday evening to be much better. " His condition is favorable," said the doctor, "and I hope that in a day or two I shall be able to pronounce him out of danger. His system has been much enfeebled by attacks similar to this, which arose from Bright's disease, which has already gained a terrible hold on him."

disease, which has already gained a terrible hold on him."

From a personal friend of the Senator it was learned that he has been sufering and under medical treatment for nearly a year, but that in the last two months his health has so far improved as to give grounds for congratulations from his friends and relatives. Until mid-day yesterday his condition was kept as much a secret as possible, and one of his own nephews who is in the city was in ignorance of his uncle's sickness and narrow escape from death, until a late hour in the afteraoon. Toward evening, however, telegrams and messages of inquiry came pouring in and there were many callers. No one was allowed to see the Senator save his most intimate friends and near relatives, and from some of them it was learned that his mind was head, though in the morning it had wandered and he had at times been somewhat delirious.

At 11 o'clock last night it was stated at the hotel that Senator Anthony was out of danger.

TEE NEW RECTOR OF GRACE CHURCH.

WORK OF THE REV. DR. HUNTINGDON IN WORCES-TER, MASS.-HIS LEARNING. Much interest is felt in Dr. Henry C. Potter's successor as rector of Grace Church. It was announced yesterday that the choice of the parish had fallen on the Rev. Dr. William R. Huntingdon, rector of All Saints Episcopal Church, Worcester, Mass. The chairman of Grace Church Vestry said that the formal call of Dr. Huntingdon had been made and accepted.

rector-elect of Grace Church is The intimate friend of the late rector. He is son of a physician of Lowell, Mass., where he was born. He was graduated at Harvard with distinction, and some years ago was selected as the poet of the year at the commencement, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes being the orator of the day. In his theological views, Dr. Huntingdon may be termed a liberal churchman. He is deeply read in patristic and liturgical literature, and the onduct of the Committee on the Revision of the Prayer book was almost wholly intrusted to So great was the confidence of the General Convention that all his suggestion were approved, and a prominent Bishop remarked, "Had Dr. Huntingdon recommended the suppression of the Niceae Creed and the Thirty-nine Articles, I think we should all have gone with him."

In his work at Worcester Dr. Huntingdon has been most successful. He has been nearly twenty years rector of All Saints', which, at the time he took the living, had a small congregation and a poor, insignificant church. It

It was burned down, and a truly noble and dignified structure was erected in its place, Dr. Huntingdon having mainly collected the funds. He has largely extended the church work, building a mission chapel in the suburbs. By his eloquent and original preaching he has drawn to his church large numbers of outsiders.

He is favorably known as an author, some of his works commanding a large sale. The principal are "Follow Thon Me," "The Wasting World," "Three Steppingstones" Questions on the Fourth Gospel," and "Questions on Both Testaments." The Messrs. In all these works Dr. Huntingdon commends himself to the sincere Christian who is willing to acknowledge the force of progress in science, and, while reverently holding to the ancient landmarks, he is keenly appreciative of all the light that may be thrown upon them from extraneous sources.

The number of bands of small boys permitted to parade in the streets to-day will be less than on former Thanksgiving days. Several complaints were received at Police Headquarters last year that boys who had obtained permits to parade broke windows and committed other depredations when they were turned away from places without gifts. Superintendent Walling made it the role this year to grant permits only to boys who were accompanied by responsible citizens. As a result only thirty-five permits for parades were issued this year. Among the fortunate bands are the "Original Hounds," the "Swamp Rangers," the "Flyaway Volunteers," the "Drawback Rangers," and the "Phantastics."

The usual legal holiday will be observed in the public offices, stores, Post office and schools of Brooklyn to-day, and many churches will open their doors for special services. Among the churches in which services will be held are Plymouth, where Mr. Beecher will speak of his vocation trip around the Western part of this country, and his observations, especially in the South; the Tabernacle, which will be decorated with fruits and products from all parts of the country, and where Mr. Tainaxe will speak; the Sauth Congregational, with which the Westminster Presbyterian will unite, and at which Dr. Ludlow and Mr. Lynan will conduct the service; the Summentald Methodist Episcopal, where the Rev. Henry Baker, of the Simpson Methodist Episcopal, will preach; the Church of Our Father, where the Rev. Dr. Pullman, of this city, will officiate, and Emanuel Episcopal, where an especial musteal service will be rendered. Sevral churches will unite with the Bedford Haptist Church, and the Rev. W. Burt will preach; the Church of Our Father, where the Rev. Dr. Pullou will speak in the Baytist Temple, and five charches will unite in the Ross Street Presbyterian Caurch service. In the Penitentiary, Jail, Asylum, and other public institutions, provision has been made for turkey and chickens and other delicaries for dinner, and the charitably disposed have furn

A JUDGMENT AGAINST THE ERIE.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 28 .- By a recent dedision of the Court of Appeals, L. C. Woodruff, of this city, was awarded a judgment amounting, with interest, to $220,000, against the New-York, Lake Eric and Western Railroad Company. In June, 1871, the Erie and Genesee Valley Railroad Campany resolved to raise $120,000 in order to complete the road from Dansville to Burns, and accordingly issued bonds to that amount. L. C. Woodruff, of this city, agreed to pay the interest on the bonds in consideration agreed to pay the interest on the bonds in consideration of a lease of the road for a long term of years. He, in turn, leased the road to the Eric Railway Company for the full unexpired term of the charter, on their agreeing to pay the interest on the bonds. Subsequently, the Eric road was placed in the hands of Receiver Jewett. He refused to pay the rent or the interest on the bonds, and Woodruff brought suit. The defence was that the lease was ultra vires, and the case finally went to the Court of Appeals with the above result.

The House of Industry makes its thirtieth annual appeal for fluancial assistance to enable it to continue its redecining work at the Five Points.

During these many years it has received the support of the public generally, and has saved from lives of poverty and crime hundreds of children. Children whose parents are not able to do anything for their support, and children whose parents are able to partially support them, as well as housless and friendless little ones are received into the Institution until they can be otherwise provided for. Children whose parents are too poor to send them to the public schools are admitted to the caurity day-school, and in every possible way the instito the charity day-school, and in every possible way the insti-tution seeks to be of benefit to the poor at the Five Points.

During the year a bay Nursery has been opened wherein 40 to 50 children, ranging in ages between one and they pears are caref for from 7 o'clock in the morning to 7 o'clock at night, while the mothers go out to work.

To provide for all the various branches of the work, the sum of $100 a day is required, and for this sum the House of Indus-try is largely indebted to the generous offerings of its friends.

There are now more than 400 children each day at the dim-ner-table.
